

Housing authority wrestles with construction woes

by Arlene Surprenant
Members of the Wilmington Housing Authority seemed fed up with yet another set of problems confronting them Monday night relative to the construction of the new low to moderate income scattered site homes.

"I'm getting sick of this," was the way Dan Gillis, one of the more outspoken members, put it. Chairman Kevin McMillan simply called the whole situation "absurd."

One of the main problems affecting homes slated for King and Carey Streets is cracks in the foundations. Members were told when the concrete was poured, there were problems with a vibrator which finally broke down. As a result, the construction advisor from EOCED told the board the work was "not acceptable." To compound the problem, the modular homes are scheduled to be delivered for placement on the foundations next Tuesday.

Gillis was adamant that the homes, which are complete and awaiting delivery in Vermont, not be placed on the foundations. He repeatedly threatened that the board would not pay for any work not completed to members' satisfaction.

When Executive Director Lillian Buckley said members had been asked to make a six hour round trip to Vermont to check the new homes before delivery, Gillis exploded.

"I want to see them after they're up there and installed ... Every window might be smashed by the time they get down here," he said. He said viewing the homes was the builder's and architect's responsibility and the board should not pay for the homes until they were "fully assembled and fastened to their foundations."

Lack of a water hookup in the Lost Colony continues to be a major stumbling block to the completion of four homes in that area.

Buckley said she received word that North Reading selectmen want an apology for accusations made by project architect Michael Hicks. She said before the water problem can be resolved, North Reading wants to receive an easement from Wilmington for an eight inch water main and have Wilmington's help in solving a drainage problem on Burroughs Road.

McMillan was angry. "As far as I'm concerned, they've denied us and held us hostage," he said, adding, "if anyone should demand a letter of apology, it should be us."

According to a front page article in the North Reading Transcript, the request for water has been placed on a future selectmen's agenda until such time as "a proper agreement, satisfactory to both towns, has been reached."

Buckley said she is frustrated because "no one wants to handle this." She said she was "very concerned" with liability and the quick placement of the homes without resolving the water issue.

"We can't deliver the homes to the site until we have water," she added.

The board heard about other issues including the lack of hot water heaters in the homes and "massive" boulders on one site that could pose a safety hazard.

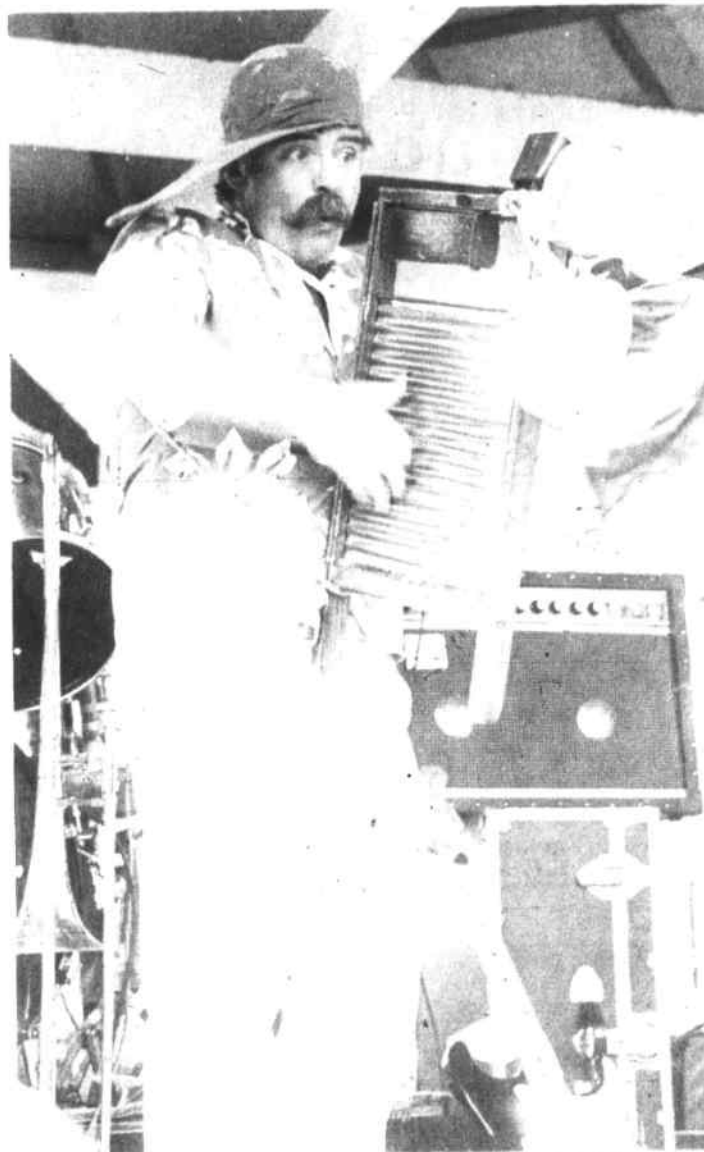

They also heard about several problems outlined in a June 11 letter from the contractor to the architectural firm of Domenech and Hicks Inc. In the letter, Project Manager Jeffrey Eames states the foundation drain system doesn't allow water to drain away from the foundations which could create cracks in the concrete. Eames complains about crawl space vents which will allow cold air to come in contact with the plumbing causing possible freezing problems at a later date. He points to a potential problem with stairs cracking because they are only supported at two points.

WHA members expect to meet with their attorney Thursday at 2 p.m. to go over some of the problems addressed at their meeting.

Concerts

Concerts on the common continue tonight with the Continentals, playing swing and big band sounds. The concert will be from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The next concert will be on Wed., July 15, featuring the country and rock 'n' roll sounds of Pony Express.

Clean act

His name is Tim Greeley, and he's called "the world's greatest washboard player." He also does a great "Three Stooges" routine. The Great Rubber Band, featuring Tim, was the entertainment on Wednesday night on Wilmington Common during the town's celebration of the Fourth of July. Other photos of the celebration appear on page five.

Developer wanted to finish subdivision

Middlesex Pines is a subdivision with some of the highest priced homes in Wilmington. It was built three to four years ago by Pat Cone of North Andover.

There have been some problems with the subdivision. Problem number one is that the roads were never finished. Recently, Cone reached a settlement with the Town of Wilmington, agreeing to pay $37,500 for the completion of the roads. This was in addition to a bond of $80,000 which had been originally posted.

In the announcement of the settlement, it was stated that Cone had approached the town seeking to settle. Cone said that the opposite is true.

Yes, Cone wanted to settle, he said. But the town approached him. Cone then went to the town manager.

"My reason for giving the $37,500 is that I want to see it finished," Cone said.

Cone's story of what went wrong is interesting. He is a Wilmington native who has built developments in more than 50 towns. Never has he had a problem like he encountered in Wilmington, and he lays the blame on the officials with whom he had to deal.

Cone said he wanted very much to finish the roads in the subdivision, but that town engineer (now retired) Bob Higgins would not let him, refusing to sign the necessary approvals so the work could proceed.

Cone said that one practice of Higgins was that asphalt could not be laid until Higgins had approved the material under the road. Then and only then Higgins would call the paving contractor and tell him to go ahead.

Cone maintains that in no other town would the town engineer insist on making that call himself. But by so doing, Higgins indicated his approval of the work. Yet he would not sign that approval.

Higgins, said Cone, wanted Cone to have his engineers certify that the work under the road was done. It was up to Higgins to certify that. The responsibility of the contractor's engineer was only to provide "as built" drawings.

Cone said he sent letters by registered mail to the planning board, never receiving a reply. He only heard from the planning board once the residents of the subdivision began to complain.

Once the planning board began discussing the problem, he was not officially invited to the meetings. Cone said that for one of the meetings, Higgins actually went to Cone and asked him not to attend.

Cone maintains that the manner in which the bond was taken was illegal. The planning board voted first to rescind the subdivision, which nullified any reason for there being a bond. Then the board voted to take the bond. Cone maintains that this could not be done legally, since there was technically no subdivision at that point.

"I want to know why all this could go on with nobody doing anything about it," he said. He said that he spoke individually with selectmen, but nothing was done.

Cone cited problems with a number of officials, claiming the only one who would deal with him straight was Bob Palmer.

Ring to be water commissioner?

James Ring lives at 277 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington. He may soon become Wilmington's next water commissioner. If he does he will be, in a sense, following a path laid out by his grandfather, Joseph Ring, about 60 years ago.

Joe lived next door. He was a man who liked a trim lawn, and who had a small garden. That wasn't quite enough, so Joe went down to the town hall to see if there was something he could do.

Joe became a registrar of voters, an appointive position. He did not want a political type of job. For many years he was at the town hall whenever the registrars had work to do. In his last years Joe used a magnifying glass, the better to see the typed names.

This paper should have taken a picture of Joseph Ring, peering through that glass. Unfortunately it did not.

Last week his grandson Jim was at the meeting of the Wilmington Sewer and Water Commissioners. The town manager had suggested he should make himself acquainted with George Allan and Arthur Smith. There had been a vacancy ever since the passing of the late Maurice O'Neill, and maybe Jim Ring was the man to fill that vacancy.

Jim is a graduate of the Wilmington schools who went on to college, and is now an analyst for Wang in Lowell. The commissioners seemed to feel, after some talk, that he could be a good commissioner.

Now Jim has to again talk with the town manager. Maybe, one of these days, he will hold up his right hand before the town clerk, and become a water commissioner.

Tighe discusses condos with concom

by Arlene Surprenant

Under Chapter 774, a developer has to apply for a comprehensive permit through the zoning board of appeals and meet with the conservation commission separately on wetland and related issues.

At last Wednesday's commission meeting, builder Jay Tighe and his professional staff informally discussed their condominium project off Reed Street. Because this wasn't a formal presentation, Chairman Chester Bruce limited comments from neighbors in attendance.

According to the process spelled out by law, the conservation commission has to file a notice of intent and hold a public hearing on any proposal. The board then has 21 days to render a decision. Any findings are sent to the state.

Commission members concern themselves with disturbance to wetlands, detention ponds and drainage, preservation of rivers and streams, water runoff, and similar issues.

Saying he had "plenty of questions," most of which he would hold, Bruce questioned the process. When he inquired if proponents would go to the board of appeals first, attorney Carol Rolf replied they would pursue permits from both boards simultaneously.

"It has been a problem in the past. Hopefully, it won't come to a catch-22," she said.

Rolf asked the commission if they could set restrictions on the land bordering the Shawsheen River to preserve that area or look into placing trails along the river.

Bruce replied this would be a "plus." However, he added, "you're offering me a bone and I can't tell you we want the bone." He also said he was concerned with the project's density which comes out to 414 condo units on 39 acres of land.

According to Rolf, an Environmental Notification Form will be filed with the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency in the next few weeks.

Commission member Tom Roussell pointed out "the bigger the site, the more things they (proponents) have to go through."

It's YOUR Money

HOW ARE YOU DOING

It's one thing to watch the daily stock tables and see how your investments are doing. It's quite another to total up your net worth and measure the change from last quarter or last year. Once you've set up the outline, it's not difficult to fill in the numbers periodically and see how your dollars stack up.

Under assets, list your home, bank accounts, all securities, the cash value of any insurance policies, your cars, boat, or other personal property, the current cash value of your pension or profit sharing plan, your IRA - everything you own. The credits take in everything you owe, from the mortgage balance on the house to your credit card bills.

The difference is your net worth. You'll want to see a progression from one year to the next, unless there have been worthwhile expenses - college tuition, for instance - for which you've dipped into capital. Did you at least beat the rate of inflation?

We can help you analyze your financial situation and plan tax strategies.

Indicted

A Wilmington man has been indicted by a Middlesex County Grand Jury. Victor Withold Wilhelm, 42, of 2 Brentwood Ave. is charged with indecent assault and battery on a child under 14, and assault and battery. The charges relate to divers dates between June 1982 and June 1986.

Asst. District Atty. Crispin Birnbaum is prosecuting the case.

Low water pressure next door to standpipe

Dr. Charles Przyemski lives on a small hillock which is off Hillside Way in Wilmington. Hillside Way is the street in the south part of the town which goes uphill to Burlington. One of Wilmington's water towers is located off Hillside Way, on the highest point available.

The homesite of Dr. Przyemski is just about as nice as any in Wilmington. From the front lawn one can see into the valley that used to be the Merrimack River, in Woburn, back in the proglacial days, when that river ran from the present city of Lowell to Boston.

The Wilmington Water Commissioner had a complaint last week from Dr. Przyemski. The water pressure at his home was low.

Of course it was low, the commissioners agreed. He lies at nearly the same height as the water tower, and at this time of the year the water tower is not full, because people take long showers, and water their lawns. The water level is now only around 20 feet higher than is the home of Dr. Przyemski.

It will be better again, the commissioners agreed, in the fall, when people stop watering their lawns.

But to write a letter, and tell the doctor about this—that would be difficult. The commissioners instead agreed to write a letter and invite the doctor to one of their meetings, where the explanation could be made verbally.

Wilmington health officials continue campaign against junk cars

by Arlene Surprenant

Saying most residents are cooperating in their campaign to clean up unregistered vehicles in town, Wilmington Board of Health members dealt with three specific junk car cases at their meeting Monday night.

The most frustrating case concerned the storage of cars, bicycle parts, and other debris on the property of Bernard Eaton of Lake Street.

This case, said Chairman James Ficociello, has been before the board numerous times in the past three years. The owner, to date, has been fined up to a thousand dollars on two separate occasions and taken to court three times in an effort to get him to clean up the eyesore. Though Eaton cleaned it up when ordered to do so, the property inevitably returned to the same condition. Board members maintain the place looks like a "hovel" and poses fire and health hazards. They say their next move will be to go to district court to seek a fine and then a jail sentence. If the owner still keeps his property in the same condition, members may ask that the town clean up the premises and place a lien on Eaton's house.

Mitch Dembowski of Silverhurst Avenue and several of his neighbors showed up at Monday's meeting to express their concern and show recent photos of the property.

"I'm not here to lynch the man. I just want the property cleaned up," said Dembowski.

Ficociello told residents the case has been very difficult. "The man just doesn't respond," he said, adding a rational person would not put himself in this position.

"We're empowered through the courts. We're not a law enforcement agency," Ficociello explained as he sympathized with neighbor's feelings of frustration and anger at the continual delay in resolving the problem.

Health Director Gregory Erickson said neighbors have a legal right to bring a civil suit against Eaton.

The second case dealt with 29 unregistered vehicles on property owned by the Chisholm family of Hopkins Street. Some of the vehicles are reportedly classic antiques.

Acting on a complaint filed by 24 area residents, the board has ordered the Chisholm family to either register the vehicles or clear them off the property. A registered letter sent out shortly after a June 1 meeting came back, said members, because no one would sign for it. A second letter was sent June 20. The Chisholms now have 30 days -- an extension of the original 10 day time period -- to clean up their property or face court action. When Erickson pointed out he was told some of the cars are antiques, Ficociello said, as far as he was concerned, they all had to be removed.

The third case concerned some junk cars on Paul Godzyk's property at the corner of Lowell and Parker streets.

Members said, according to Godzyk, he put the vehicles in front of his house to act as a barrier to keep speeding cars from crashing into his home. Godzyk, they added, is asking the town to put up a guard rail.

Erickson agreed that Godzyk lives at a "bad corner." Ficociello, remarking on "the inventiveness of some people," pointed out that the cars have been there for at least ten years.

Board steps in on odor complaint

John Hatfield, president of the Durofibre Company on Andover Street, came before the Wilmington Board of Health Monday to answer an anonymous complaint of a "heavy resin" odor emanating from his company. This was the second odor nuisance complaint filed on this company in the last two years.

Hatfield blamed the problem on a ventilation system which was not operating at full capacity on a 90 degree day. He told the board his company has been taking steps to abate the odor and he will have a consultant check the ventilation system and recommend appropriate action. Hatfield added he wants to work with the board to resolve any problems.

Chairman James Ficociello praised Hatfield's efforts, saying they were a step in the right direction. He explained it was his board's job to keep nuisances to a minimum and protect the quality of life in the neighborhood. He asked to see a copy of the consultant's report.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

On March 19, 1974, Ella Belmore began thirteen years of service with the town of Wilmington. Like most town employees, she was always glad to dedicate herself to hard work, even when it exceeded her formal duties and went into her personal time. But all of this was made exceedingly difficult by an administration at town hall which is beginning to succumb to a solid reputation of old political tactics. This June 2, Ella Belmore, secretary to the conservation commission, was fired by Town Manager Reginald Stapczynski. And, the story behind the dismissal is one of the most revealing political nightmares seen in a long while.

The controversy here began with a new policy which required Belmore, and other part time employees, to sign a contract. Though Ella Belmore's duties and commitment went well beyond 'part time', she was technically a part time clerk. So, for the first time in thirteen years Ella was asked to sign a contract, which is naturally a legally binding document. And upon examining it carefully, as anyone would, Belmore discovered quite a few problems with the document. Simply put, it fell just a little bit shy of a loyalty statement. If signed, it prohibited the individual from given benefits of full time work, that anyone can apply for when their hours exceed part time status. Feeling uncomfortable with the contract, especially when she had been able to work for the town without one for well over a decade, Belmore would not sign. And, one might immediately question why a 'tricky worded contract', to use Belmore's words, was suddenly needed for a person who had served with high competence for a long period of time.

The next problem came with a memo from the manager which was a change in how the conservation commission secretary reported her work hours. Having always done so directly to the commission, she was now ordered to do so to the new conservation administrator, who had recently been appointed by the town manager. This person is Libby Sabounjian.

Sabounjian's appointment continues to stir great controversy in the local government. The conservation commission was said to be excluded from the process, and maintains that they had the right to choose their own administrator. And many in the community still question why those applicants with significantly superior experience were not appointed over Sabounjian, whose principal strength was educational background. Two of the other candidates included Belmore and the chairman of the conservation commission.

In any event, the dispute boiled down to who the conservation secretary was answerable to. The commission which had hired her directly in 1974, or a new conservation administrator who is said to be fiercely loyal to the town manager. On June 2, 1987, the town manager took the easy way out. He fired Belmore, with not so much as a days notice. The formal letter dated June 2 called for termination immediately, pending a hearing.

Well as if things weren't bad enough for Belmore, who served the town for thirteen years, her appeal hearing was to be held before a hearing officer by the name of Reginald Stapczynski. I wonder if he really expected to overturn his own dismissal? Can you imagine being fired from a job, and your appeal at the place of employment is to be made before the very person who fired you!! That has got to be the biggest joke in town right now. This same controversy arose in the Vassallo case, and points to the need for the Legislature to act quickly to prevent this type of unethical activity.

Thus, you can well guess the result of the hearing. Belmore is unemployed. As Ella puts it, "I think basically that I didn't have the support of the selectmen behind me, especially in light of my stand on a major subdivision project." What's more, Belmore is owed for eighty hours pay by the town. She says that the town manager has agreed she is owed the money, but wants a full accounting as to what she did for those specific hours. This guy is a real sweetheart, isn't he! First he fires you, then you get an appeal before noneother than himself, then he withholds your last paychecks until you tell him exactly what you did for that time. If you're beginning to think this isn't for real, it is!

Chester Bruce is the chairman of the conservation commission. He described the town manager's actions as "a very large injustice to the conservation commission, and a big disservice to the town of Wilmington with someone with this type of background and experience being let go." Bruce further commented, "I think it was a political move." Showing their support of Belmore, the conservation commission has made her an associate member, which is certainly an embarrassment for the town manager.

And the controversy goes on. People in growing numbers are becoming concerned with the administration at town hall which seems to be preoccupied with having greater influence over the conservation commission. This began with Stapczynski's abhorrent way of handling the recent appointment of a conservation administrator, and is seen to date with the termination of Belmore, which beneath the surface has many political motives. Belmore has referred to her stand on a subdivision project, and a subsequent lack of support from the selectmen. This is most unfortunate. No one involved in protecting the environment and the community from overdevelopment should have to fear retribution. But unless something is done, the politics at town hall can only damage sincere conservation efforts, and demoralize public servants like Belmore who simply wanted to do the job she was hired by the conservation commission to do.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

I would like to address the following comments to Selectman McCoy regarding his letter last week to Lisa Oxman and my wife.

Don't you ever get tired of defending yourself and correcting your inaccurate statements? For all your so-called experience, you still have a lot to learn.

For your information, Michael, Lisa is not a classmate of any of my three daughters. One of my daughters is seven years old, one graduated from Wilmington High and one, though in the Class of '89, attends the Shawsheen Tech in Billerica. Actually, neither my wife nor myself know Miss Oxman, but we thoroughly enjoyed her intelligent letter.

Once again you shot from the hip and need to get your facts straight. Lucky for us you're not a reporter for the "Town Crier".

One last word: when the young people of our town can see through you, Michael, can the adults be far behind?

Sincerely yours,
Vaughn Surprenant

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I'm writing in response to the open letter from Jack Cushing, chairman - 4th of July Committee. Please be advised that if "politics" in this town were taken care of as expertly as the 4th of July Program this town would not be in the sorry state it is in ie: our so-called "rural character" defined by the Rte. 129/38 parking lot. I thank my lucky stars for your committee and the fabulous job done this year and years gone by. If I could sign my name to a support letter 1000 times it wouldn't be enough.

I hope your antagonists were present all week, especially on the Fourth to see the hundreds of people enjoying the results of your monthly planning sessions. I hope some day when things calm down at my house that I will be able to volunteer to help. I would be proud to be paid only a red tee shirt and white hat. Thank you to all the volunteers!!

I'm thankful your letter appeared because I didn't realize your committee was responsible for the Christmas lights, the lighting ceremony and your other good deeds. Our young daughter (three years old this past Christmas) still talks about Santa raising his arms and magically, on went the lights!!

Please keep up the good work so that our family may selfishly enjoy the traditions.

Our vote is For your committee and keep the politics out of it.

Thankfully yours in Free spirit,
Priscilla Caren
and family

Dear Larz:

The letter sent to you last week by Mr. and Mrs. Pellegrini was paradoxical to say the least.

In one instance, they highlight my stands on conserving open space and being a voice of the neighbors against high density projects, increased traffic and similar concerns.

On the other hand, they imply that I have not shown the same interest regarding the 414 unit condominium proposal slated for their neighborhood.

That allegation is totally untrue. I am vehemently opposed to this proposal.

I have discussed strategy with three of his neighbors and have in addition answered letters sent to me by three additional neighbors.

Those meetings which I didn't attend (none of them hearings), were as follows:

1. The neighbors' request for legal help from the Board of Selectmen (I recommended to two of the neighbors that they start with this approach.)

2. A presentation to the Board of Selectmen from EOCD regarding the workings of 774. Most of the neighbors did not attend this meeting, and not all of the Selectmen remained for the meeting. I think I understand Chapter 774, the Acts of 1969, as well as anyone in the Commonwealth, and so my presence was not required.

3. The third meeting (and the only one the Pellegrini's highlight), was called by Jay Tighe to make his presentation to the neighbors. I was aware of what he was proposing; and as Mr. Pellegrini himself pointed out, I was at the Tewksbury Board of Appeals that evening speaking against another 774 condo project being proposed for Benson Road, an area situated on the Tewksbury - Wilmington line.

As I told the Pellegrini's good friend, Mrs. Surprenant, in response to a similar letter sent by the latter to the Merrimack Valley Advertiser the very same week, I had already arranged a tentative meeting (with a date to be firmed up) on the state level which might offer some help.

Many of my colleagues feel I am getting involved in a "no-win" situation because of the legal stability of Chapter 774, Acts of 1969; but I am willing to try.

As Mr. and Mrs. Pellegrini stated, I have always been a great believer in our town purchasing or taking land for the use of future generations. I succeeded in convincing the Town Meeting to vote for the last significant land-taking in the 1970's. Two later attempts to repeat this process in other parts of town at subsequent meetings were killed by political maytays.

We are paying the price for this shortsightedness today. These large tracts of land would have been in town possession, and we would not now be fighting battles to preserve the remaining greenery and wetlands.

I would like to ask Mr. and Mrs. Pellegrini, as I have asked their good friend, Mrs. Surprenant, to please avail themselves of our constituent-oriented office by calling me at 722-2380.

Let's save the politics for election day.

Sincerely,

Representative James R. Miceli
20th Middlesex District
Tewksbury - Wilmington

P.S. No public official in this district attends more meetings, communicates more with his constituents, or makes himself more available than I do.

Dear Larz:

Now that things have settled in, I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere gratitude to the members of American Legion Post 136, Wilmington, Mass., for sponsoring me at the annual Boys State Program, recently held at Bentley College from June 13 through June 20, 1987.

Along with over 700 other juniors from around the State of Massachusetts, I had the opportunity to be involved in a week of intensive schooling on Government, Politics, and other subjects and had the opportunity to experience life at a college campus.

The experience, I acquired at Boys State was irreplaceable and well worth the time and effort I invested. I would highly recommend this program to anyone seeking a better understanding of our government.

Next year, to show my appreciation, I plan to attend again as a counselor to help others obtain the same rewarding experience from this program that I did.

Further, I would like also to thank the Wilmington Board of Selectmen for the Citation recognizing my effort.

Thank you for a great time!

Joseph E. Linehan
Class of '88

Dear Larz:

July 1 Town Crier carried a rousing Point of View column re Freedom vs Ch. 774 which greatly increased my admiration for Arlene Surprenant and I feel should be sent to Governor Dukakis, signed perhaps by thousands who agree, and to every state senator and representative, and perhaps to our men in Congress.

Every one of her points makes sense. For individuals, for families, for the town. This town left from farm to industry which ruined it, then to high tech which employs it, but now it needs to, as she said, take a stand against 774. (Perhaps the League of Women Voters would post someone at every shopping point to collect signatures?) Or outlaw developers who rape towns they don't even live in. I offer to donate the cost of re-printing or postage.

T. Prentiss

Dear Larz:

This letter is in reply to a wild telephone call my husband received on Thursday evening from Rep. Miceli regarding our letter to the editor of July 1. I would like to state the following to Mr. Miceli:

1. We were not "pumped up" by anyone to write this letter. In fact, the entire neighborhood plus the surrounding area is "pumped up" by the proposed condominium project.

2. As a state representative, this was not the response of a public official. You were totally out of control and did not give my husband a chance to reply.

3. As far as your accusations about my husband not being at the neighborhood meeting of June 25, he was in fact very much in attendance. I question how you knew about a signpost sheet when you were not even there. As far as your being personally invited you are our state rep. and resident of this town and therefore should make it a point to attend these vital meetings. If you feel that you need an invitation, then I will personally invite you to any and all future meetings regarding this project. The next scheduled meetings are with the board of selectman on July 13 and the planning board on July 14.

4. As far as your demanding a public apology for our letter, I apologize to no one!! My question still stands, are you in this with us or with them? I think you should be the one to apologize to this entire neighborhood. You are where you are today because of people like us who have trusted in you and supported you. Where, Mr. Miceli, has your support been for us?

This proposed 414 unit condominium project will not only have a major impact on this town, but will ultimately destroy this beautiful neighborhood.

A pat on the back

by Arlene Surprenant

If there were an award for perseverance above and beyond the call of duty, Lillian Buckley, executive director, and the Wilmington Housing Authority would win it hands down.

WHA members have battled for years to get the construction of eight low to moderate income homes and new elderly housing underway. They have fought to upgrade and modernize the present units at Deming Way.

It hasn't been easy. There has been red tape to cut, obstacles to overcome, and one frustrating delay after another.

For instance, members have had septic design problems with the board of health and struggles to sewer Deming Way, where the new units will go. There have been equipment breakdowns and problems with heating and pipes and termites and the septic system.

Board members have been faced with vandalism and ongoing problems over water -- or the lack of it -- in the Lost Colony area, leading to tension and hard feelings between the board and North Reading officials. This week a new set of problems cropped up concerning foundations, lack of hot water heaters, and delivery of the units.

It has been necessary for the board to work in a cooperative manner with the town, the state, the various architects, and the contractors. This has been an almost impossible task given the fact that, at times, each seems to have gone in a different direction. There have been salary disputes, mounds of paperwork, complaints, threats, and weekly meetings both in Boston and Wilmington.

For anyone who has ever set foot in the Deming Way Community Hall -- the board's meeting place -- there is currently the danger of suffocation from lack of air, or worse yet, the chance that those in attendance will be eaten alive by an army of gnats. This is due to lack of an air conditioner and two screen doors. What an opportunity for some kind soul to donate these much needed items to benefit both the board and Deming Way seniors who use this building day and night.

To Lillian Buckley, Kevin McMillan, Bill Strob, Dan Gillis, Elaine Hachey, and Warren Newhouse: you may not win an award. But you deserve a pat on the back and all the encouragement we, as a town, can offer as you continue your uphill struggle to provide housing so needed in town.

The July 12, 1962 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

The Burlington Avenue bridge was to be closed for a month for repairs and the Butters Row bridge was closed for the installation of a 12 inch water main.

Paul Godzyk "How's your Rubbish" advertised that he had put another truck into service and could accommodate more customer-weekly collection for six months would cost $6.00.

Victoria Fogg, 14, of Linda Road, WHS sophomore, took part in a five day archery match at Springfield and broke three records. She won a special gold pin for shooting six arrows out of six consecutive shots into the center of the target at 30 yards.

Elias was advertising lobsters for 59 cents a pound; lamb chops at 49 cents a pound and Hood's ice cream at 69 cents per half gallon.

A two-year-old garrison colonial with one and one-half baths, and many other features including being handy to stores and schools was advertised for $21,300.

Pictured was a horse tied to a tree in the cemetery while employees admired the mowing job the animal was doing on the lawn. The horse--later identified as belonging to Ed Frotton of Wildwood Street--was found roaming loose and was finally captured by firefighter Earl Burns.

Hundreds of youngsters were taking swimming lessons at Silver Lake under the direction of lifeguards Dicky Allard and Jackie Bowen. Classes, set for three days a week, one class a day had to be increased to three classes daily due to the number of youngsters wanting to take part.

Downhill ride

Gravity is the only power needed to run this carnival ride. The giant slide was quite popular during the Fourth of July weekend.

View from the top

This bird's eye view of the carnival at Wilmington High School was taken from the Sky Diver. The new gymnasium is at right.

Oh, what a fantastic Fourth!

by Arlene Surprenant

It was America's 211th birthday and Wilmington celebrated in style.

We enjoyed the unique sounds of the Petty Trio, Country Limited, Paul Wayne, and the Great Rubber Band. We were inspired by the patriotic renditions of the talented Air Force Band.

We soaked up the carnival atmosphere. The reds, yellows, and blues of the lights and rides spinning in the night. The good-natured crowd strolling along the midway, clutching huge sunglasses, polar bears and Bon Jovi t-shirts. The smell of fried dough and hot dogs. Sticky fingers from spun cotton candy and red candy apples. The laughter and screams as young and old alike tempted fate on the Casino and daring Sky Diver ferris wheel.

We ate our way through six days of Fun on the Fourth. We enjoyed special dinners dished up and prepared by Rotary, Sons of Italy, Lions Club, Knights of Columbus, Marine Corps League, Kiwanis, and Wilmington Minutemen. We gorged on ice cream topped with pineapple, strawberries, hot fudge, and whipped cream. We wolfed down strawberry shortcake and assorted pies and refreshed ourselves with fruit cups and lemonade. We plunked down pennies for Mary Janes and tootsie rolls and passion fruit candy sticks and old fashioned red hots.

When we had our fill, we ran and we raced and we paced ourselves for two miles. We went in for dunk shots and tested our ability at halfball and volleyball, horseshoes and croquet. We cheered our favorites pushing beds around the Common and competing in the triathlon. And, as we lined up our shots at the youth soccer dunk tank, we envisioned who was really sitting there waiting for the icy plunge into the water below.

We relaxed on the Common. We braved the heat as Dandy Lion and her zoo paraded by on the heels of Miss Liberty; as bikes bedecked with Barbies, streamers, and a yellow giraffe glided by during the bike and doll carriage contests. We viewed oils and watercolors and pastel portraits created by local artists. Throughout the week, we clapped hands and sang along and lounged on blankets dotting the lawn. We greeted old friends and new, put a hex on the rain, and reflected on the meaning of freedom and the Fourth of July.

We were overwhelmed by the sheer numbers who turned out for the grand finale Saturday night. We lined up chairs to get a better view. We waved balloons and sparklers and lightsticks and flags. We hugged small children with painted faces and searched for teens who wandered off with their peers. We shared feelings of patriotism and exchanged small talk with neighbors and friends. Finally, we ohhed and ahhed as a continual shower of color lit up the night, the staccato shells accompanied by the "1812 Overture."

Through it all, we never forgot the effort put forth by the committee which made it all come together. Those red-shirted men and women who scheduled and planned and had the job of overseeing the festivities. Those caring men and women -- volunteers all -- who gave up vacations and family time to make the magic work once again.

Independence Day 1987 is past. But for all of us in Wilmington, the memories linger on.

Most proper

Jim Durkee was properly dressed for his croquet match on the common on Friday.

Dunk candidate

If nothing else, you'd have to call Pat Hoffman dedicated. Pat not only volunteered to go in the dunk tank as a fund raiser for Wilmington Youth Soccer -- he even juggled three balls while waiting to be dunked.

First Bank names two directors

First Bank Chairman of the Board George L. Duncan has announced the appointments of Kathleen Bradley and Nancy Donahue to the Bank's Board of Directors.

Kathleen (Kay) Bradley of Westford brings many years of business experience to First Bank's Board. She is the president of R.J. Bradley Ski Shop in Westford. She also founded Uniglobe Travel in Chelmsford in 1984. Involved in many civic and charitable endeavors, she has most recently served on the board of directors of the Chambers of Commerce of Northern Middlesex and was recently named Chairman of the Board.

In 1986, she was the recipient of the "Outstanding Woman in Business" award of the Chambers of Commerce of Northern Middlesex. The annual awards breakfast was sponsored by First Bank.

She and her husband, Richard, have six children. One son, Chris, is involved with her sporting store business and her daughter, Pat, is a nationally recognized professional golfer.

In making the announcement, Chairman Duncan, First Bank's chief executive officer, said, "Mrs. Bradley's experience and reputation in the community will prove a great asset to First Bank in the years ahead."

Nancy Donahue of Lowell brings to the First Bank Board many years of experience in non-profit business management. One of the original founders of the University of Lowell Foundation, she served as that group's Executive Director from 1977 to 1986. She has also been involved with the Merrimack Valley United Fund agency for over a decade serving as president of the agency from 1978-79 and as budget chairperson in 1980. She is a co-founder of the Merrimack Repertory Theatre and was the group's first president.

Mrs. Donahue serves on numerous boards including First Foundation, Whistler House Museum, St. John's Nursing Home, St. John's Hospital Foundation and the Lowell Plan's Cultural Commission. In the past she has served as a consultant to community based theatre groups in Massachusetts and New York.

She and her husband, Atty. Richard K. Donahue, are the parents of 11 children.

"Mrs. Donahue is one of the most outstanding women in Greater Lowell in terms of civic, cultural and community involvement and we are proud to have her join The First Bank family," said Duncan.

This is the fourth appointment First Bank has made to its Board within the last year. In December, the bank appointed Raymond Toupin and Evelyn Reardon, both of Westford, to its Board. With these latest appointments, First Bank's Board numbers 11 members.

"It's an outstanding board" said First Bank CEO George Duncan, "with people from all areas of Greater Lowell representing a wide range of community and business affiliations."

New nursery school planned

School is barely out and the stores are flooded with "back to school" fashions. Parents, too, are thinking about September and hoping for the perfect setting for their children.

Those with children who have missed the kindergarten cut-off date have a special problem. Many of the children have already spent two years in nursery school and, although they were happy, parents worry that another year in a traditional nursery environment would not be stimulating enough for their charge.

The impending opening of a new type of pre-school in September might well rescue the child who is falling through the cracks in the traditional nursery-kindergarten environment. The school, called Apres Nursery, is run by Janine Gaudreau, a former elementary school teacher with extensive experience in pre-school.

Gaudreau says that one of the main differences between her program and other nursery school programs is one of class size and therefore individual attention.

Small class size will also allow for an abundance of field trips, increased chance to use a variety of hands-on learning materials, and an individual program for learning for each child.

The school day will last from nine in the morning until noon and include time for free play, music (including making your own instruments), science experiments, cooking, drama, art projects, play outdoors, and monthly field trips. "One of the most important times of the day will be storytime," says Gaudreau, who has her masters degree in teaching reading.

More information on the program may be obtained by calling 658-4469.

Standing ovation for Ben

According to an eyewitness, an employee of Walpole Woodworking, a Wilmington resident was on the receiving end of a standing ovation at the Hudson Raceway last week.

Having heard of his unusual talent, the managers at the raceway invited Ben to perform on his motorcycle prior to the regular racing events.

As the driver approached the side of the track, he rose to a standing position on the seat, raising his arms in the air like an Indian hailing the sunrise, as Ben, the passenger simply went along for the ride - to the clamoring admiration of the racing fans in the bleachers. As the bike slowed and began to wobble, the driver returned to his seat and Ben, crouching slightly, held his position - at which point the audience rose to its feet and cheered. Good dog!!! Good show!!!

Ben, a small, lop-eared black lab cross, and fellow Marine Frank Downs met and became friends, about six years ago while stationed at Twenty-Nine Palms, a Marine base in the California desert.

BEWARE THE HOME EQUITY TRAP.

A lot of banks are using the promise of easy money to put your most valuable asset, your family home, in jeopardy.

The fact is, a home equity credit line that is based solely on your home's equity value, and that doesn't have a strict interest rate cap, is an invitation to disaster if you borrow beyond your ability to pay, or if interest rates soar again.

Introducing CASHLINE PLUS. A personal home equity line of credit from MASSBANK for Savings.

CASHLINE PLUS has all the advantages of ordinary home equity credit accounts. But none of the hidden liabilities.

It's basically an open line of credit for up to 75% of the equity value of your home to a maximum of $100,000.00. Money you can use for anything you want. Anytime you want. By writing a check.

But unlike other equity credit lines, CASHLINE PLUS is based as much on your ability to repay - on your personal financial condition and outstanding debt - as it is on the equity on your home.

And CASHLINE PLUS

has a strict interest rate cap. The low rate of 1.5 percent above Prime as reported in the Wall Street Journal is capped at an annual rate of 14 percent if Prime exceeds 12.5 percent.

So before you rush blindly and unsuspectingly into an ordinary home equity credit trap, call 662-0117 or come in and find out all about CASHLINE PLUS.

At MASSBANK for Savings, we want you to enjoy all the benefits of owning your own home. But we also want to protect you.

By keeping your home, and your equity, right where it belongs.

'Cooling the takeover fever'

Editor's note: The following article is reprinted from the May 1987 issue of Electrical World. It was submitted to the Town Crier by officials of the Reading Municipal Light Department.

Things are not working out in Page, Ariz. these days. After a spirited takeover of the Arizona Public Service Co. electrical distribution system and subsequent formation of the Page Electric Utility, customers are now wondering if it's too late to change their minds and go back to the APS system. The following article describes the situation. It is digested from an article in the September/October 1986 edition of Reddy News.

Takeover. On Jan. 29, 1985, the people of Page voted 10-1 to take over the electrical system that Arizona Public Service Co. owned and maintained. The voters decided to throw out APS because it was thought a city system could provide cheaper electricity. With hindsight, though, Page has been prompted to question itself. As the editor of Page's newspaper put it, "Is it too late to change our minds?"

One pro-takeover argument was that APS was too fat; that the municipality could provide the same and even better service with fewer people on the payroll.

But the newly formed Page Electric Utility discovered that, rather than decreasing the number of people needed to continue providing service, in reality, it doubled the number of people on the full time payroll. The city now has 14 full time employees delivering electricity. The professional resources APS provided have been replaced by consultants on retainer to the city. At the same time, service has taken a decided turn for the worse. "The Page Electric Utility has not been able to get their computer problems straightened out and so their 'Lake Powell Chronicle' Editor Julia P. Betz.

"They don't have experienced people running the office," she continued. "They don't have experienced meter readers, so the readings are being done wrong and put in the computer wrong. And they're blaming everybody but themselves for the problems."

Song and dance. "Right now, public sentiment is one of 'get my bill straightened out.' People don't like having to get their bill straightened out every single month," she went on. "When you get a $5,000 bill and your bill has never been over $150, you wonder what's going on."

Another example cited by Betz's newspaper is a residence that was billed for $996.85, alleging 10,800 kwh were used in a single month. Quipped the stunned customer, "We don't even have the freezer hooked up."

"We never had problems with APS," said Betz. "When your bill came, you knew the meter was read accurately as you knew your bill was accurate. If you had problems, they took care of it immediately, and they didn't give you a song and dance."

"I got my bill yesterday," Betz continued. "And when I called down there to complain about my bill, I was told 'pay your bill now and come in a couple of weeks and talk to us.'"

"I said, 'What do you mean in a couple of weeks?' And they said, 'We're really swamped right now.' And they were. They must have had 50 people in their office complaining about their bills."

One of the primary reasons Page elected to establish the Page Electric Utility, according to Betz, was local accountability - having the utility's decision - makers at home and responsible to elected officials rather than sitting in corporate offices in a major metropolis three-quarters of the way across the state.

Don't ask questions. However, since the municipal utility was formed, responsibility, authority, and accountability have all been open-ended questions. If APS was seen as remote, the current board of the Page Electric Utility, according to the mayor of Page, is plain old-fashioned aloof.

"In my personal opinion, they've kind of taken the aloof attitude that they're just starting up, and people should bear with them and not ask too many questions," said Mayor Duane Heatwole. "But they've excited a number of citizens and they're still doing it, I've had five complaints today. No, it hasn't been a glorious endeavor so far."

"The only ones who are making out so far are the consultants and the attorneys," stated the Chronicle.

Cheap power. One of the most persuasive arguments advanced by takeover advocates was that a city-owned system would provide less expensive electricity. This argument was buttressed by figures prepared by J.W. Wilson & Associates, an organization that specializes in municipal takeovers.

According to a preliminary budget prepared for the PEU board, based on information culled from the resources of J.W. Wilson, the cost to the city to run a utility for a full year would be $14 million, including a mere $2 million to buy the APS system.

"They [APS] don't want you to pay book value for the system," said Consultant Wilson in reconciling his figure with APS's estimate of $10 million. "They want you to pay their estimate of what it would cost to build new."

In reality, the cost of the system of Page ended up being $7.5 million and that was the result of out-of-court negotiations between Page and APS attorneys - talks initiated by Page.

Betz said she asked the attorneys for the municipality why they settled for a price tag almost four times the original estimate. The response was that if the condemnation proceedings had gone to court, "you never can tell what a jury will do."

Not only did the cost of financing of the system not jibe with the consultants' estimate and the preselection projections of takeover proponents, but projections that rates would quickly drop have so far been unfounded.

In its first proposed rate structure (written with computer software borrowed from a neighboring electrical cooperative), the new city-owned system increased, rather than decreased, rates.

Reality strikes. According to the Chronicle's account, the rates for an average supermarket, under the proposed structure, would have increased between $80,000 and $100,000 per year. The rates for residential customers increased 4.3 percent.

"The whole situation has me thinking that maybe APS was right," Betz editorialized in an issue of the Chronicle that broke the news of higher rates. "Maybe the city shouldn't be in the power business."

Faced with a barrage of criticism, the city council eventually dropped its new rates and adopted the previous APS structure. Heatwole and Page Electric Utility predict, however, that rates will eventually be lowered. "Probably after we get the billing straightened out," Heatwole said.

Bed, booze, and board. But that's not all the future holds for the citizens of Page. More than $2 million in revenues have been lost as the result of the city's purchase of the APS system and the transfer of the monies from land sales to a special trust fund. Consequently, the Page City Council has been scrambling to raise revenues through various taxes. An attempt to triple the town's sales tax and institute a "bed, booze, and board" tax has been installed in a storm of public criticism.

"When you get your electricity bill, you wonder why we did it," wrote Betz.

In the meantime, APS is using the Page story to attempt to cool any further takeover fever that may be incubating elsewhere in the state."

Fall fair

We thank the arts and crafts committee for donating $3000 from the proceeds of their fall fair and the Wilmington Town Employees Assoc. (WTEA) for donating $3000. From their dues money. With this money we purchased a DT60 Centrifuge Instrument. Representative Jim Miceli will be getting a donation of the remaining charge of $500 and the shipping charge. The cost of the machine at retail price is $18,000. The company sold it to us way below cost price as a donation.

With so many of our seniors this year taking heart attacks and strokes we wanted to find some way to help prevent as many as we could. We therefore checked around and found that many Councils throughout the country are using this type of machine with good results. The machine will be used by our nurse to check the cholesterol, potassium and glucose levels in our bodies. If they are running higher than normal, she will advise you to see the doctor. By being aware that these levels are above normal we ourselves can take means of preventing a heart attack or stroke. We are doing everything we can to meet the needs of our senior citizens, mentally, medically and physically.

Seniors who would like to have this risk assessment check, should call the center at 657-7595 or 658-2258. Abbie will be doing so many a week until she gives the services to all who would like to have it.

Arts and crafts picnic

We are in the process of signing up for the annual arts and crafts picnic. It will be held at the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks picnic grounds; on Thursday July 23. The day will start at 10 a.m. with the barbecue chicken dinner being served at noon. There are picnic benches and tables on the grounds, but if you will be sitting for some time, they do become a little uncomfortable. It would be wise to take a lawn chair. Put your name on it, as many lawn chairs look alike. A $1.00 non-refundable deposit will be requested when signing up.

No air conditioning

We realize with no air conditioning at the Center, it is a little uncomfortable for many of the programs. Opening the doors and windows will only bring in more heat and bugs. We are trying to make it as bearable as we can for those participating in the programs. We do advise if you have a health problem which is aggravated by heat it would be wise to forego the programs until the air conditioning is installed.

Dogs in pound

The Wilmington dog officer is presently holding the following dogs at the dog pound:

Female mix-breed, young, grey, brown & white, picked up July 7 on Woodside Ave.

Male golden retriever, blue nylon collar, flea collar, picked up on July 8 at 9 West St.

Male poodle (?) mix, all white with flea collar, picked up 6/30 at the Colonial Park Mall.

The Wilmington dog officer may be reached by calling the Wilmington Police at 658-5071.

Don't be duped

If any senior has received a letter from a person who has set up a business in Roxbury, informing you that you are owed money from the Federal Government do not answer it. He asks that you send him so much money and he will get the money the Federal Government owes you. Please do not send any money to this person. If you feel the Federal Government is holding money that you believe should have been sent to you, contact Congressman Edward Markey's office, they will check it out for you.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending July 7, Wilmington police officers responded to 33 alarms, 10 accidents, 14 disturbances, five fires, made nine arrests and three protective custody detentions.

Officers assisted other departments, investigated 10 incidents of suspicious activity, two break and entries, two domestic problems and nine reports of vandalism.

Arrests

A local youth was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Officer Charles Fiore after a chase from Wilmington to Dascomb Road in Andover. Thursday morning Officer Bob Richter arrested John Carbone, 23 of Haverhill charging him with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. Carbone was held overnight to appear in Woburn Court.

Two local youths were arrested Saturday night by officers Miller and Hanlon after they observed a car being driven erratically out of Wilmington Plaza. Frank Cadigan, 19 of McDonald Road and Jamie Layon, 18, also of McDonald Road were charged with underage possession of alcohol.

After investigating a report of a car screeching around in the North Wilmington parking lot, Officer Tom Miller arrested Timothy Fay, 17 of Cedarcrest Road and John Donato, 18 also of Cedarcrest Road. Both youths were charged with being underage and in possession of alcohol.

Two other youths fled the scene of the arrests and summonses will be sought for them. Stephen Bent, 19 of Linda Road and William Steed, 19 of Cedarcrest Road will be summonsed to Woburn Court on charges of underage possession of alcohol.

Fun on the Fourth

Wilmington's Fun on the Fourth was a great success as far as the police department is concerned. There was a minimum of problems caused by the activities. As usual the large crowds that descended on the town for the fireworks created a lot of confusion and illegally parked vehicles, but in the long run, things went well.

Coordinating police responsibilities with the Fourth of July Committee were Lt. Robert LaRivee and Safety Officer Robert Shelley.

Receiving the most popular vote, chosen by the viewers, was "Freshly Fallen Snow" by Joanne Gargan.

For the second year, council members awarded a John D. Brooks memorial ribbon to a deserving local artist. John was a past chairman of the Wilmington Council for the Arts and a life-long supporter of the arts. This year Rita Strow-Strow was selected for this honor. It was ironic that she had chosen to enter a portrait of John this year.

Judges for the exhibit were Pauline Bacon of Lynn and Jean Mullen of Reading. Both have had long backgrounds in art and were duly qualified to act as judges.

Mrs. Bacon studied under Mary Kindler, Carl Mutti, Helen Van Wyk, Michael Stoffa, Margaret Laurie and Olga Sears. She has taught at Lynn YMCA and in Peabody, Nahant and Revere for many years. Pauline has been active in the Lynnfield Art Guild, Greater Lynn Arts and Crafts Society and the Greater Lynn Camera Club.

Jean Mullen is a graduate of the Art Institute of Boston and has studied with Jack Calanhan and Olga Sears at the Museum of Fine Arts. She has worked as an illustrator for 20 years in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New York.

Council members wish to thank all those who participated in this program and a special thanks to the Fourth of July Committee for allowing them to offer this service to the townspeople during their Fourth of July festivities.

New principal—Michael Tikonoff, (center) recently selected as principal of the Wildwood School, was a guest of Supt. of Schools Robert Horan (right) at Wilmington Rotary last week. At left is Robert Coffill, principal of the Shawsheen School, who was also Horan's guest.

Colonial Park Mall planning expansion

by Arlene Surprenant

Engineer Erich Nitzsche of Robert Anderson Inc met with the Wilmington Conservation Commission last Wednesday on a continued hearing to fill 350 square feet of wetlands for the construction of an addition to Colonial Park Mall.

New owner David Zion is proposing an addition to the professional building on site as well as additional parking facilities. Commission members decided to continue the hearing so they could visit the site and clear up several problems.

One problem was pointed out by Chairman Chester Bruce. He said there had been hot top, pipe, and steel buried in the back corner of the property and he was concerned that this was still existing. Zion said the problem was with the previous owner and he had no instructions to pull anything out. There was also some discussion on using wrong elevations and a transfer of plants.

"It seems like there's so many loose ends and so many unanswered questions," said Bruce.

At last week's meeting, members seemed satisfied Nitzsche would take care of their concerns. Tom Roussel asked if it was possible to put a fence along the wetland abutting the property to prevent people dumping there in the future. Nitzsche said there was really nothing to stop people from throwing things over a fence. However, he suggested if that's made a condition, members require a rail fence rather than a stockade fence because the former is easier to maintain and it would be easier to view what's dumped behind it.

Kidsplace -- a place to play

The Wilmington "Kidsplace" Playground Committee has been organized to raise funds in order to construct a play area for the children of Wilmington. The group plans to use the services of Robert Leathers, a nationally known playground architect. The playground will be constructed on a site next to the Shawsheen School.

The total cost of the project is anticipated at $35,000. The construction and funding will be a community endeavor.

In keeping with this, funds will be solicited of cash and/or materials. Donations of clubs and corporations will be publicly acknowledged. Anyone donating $100 or more will have their name engraved on a plaque at

"Kidsplace."

A place to dream

The Wilmington "Kidsplace" playground committee started off its fund raising two weeks ago with a solicitation letter to all the businesses and clubs in the community.

The group would like to acknowledge donations from the following businesses for their generous response and support:

Anthony J. DeLuca, F & R Auto Supply Corp., McNamara Tire, Inc., Thermo Electron Corp., Wilmington Friends and Neighbors.

A very special thank you to: First Eastern Mortgage Corp., the first company to be listed on the bronze plaque at "Kidsplace," for a donation of $1,000.

Cripanuk Junior Olympian

A bird's eye view of the Rockies from 30,000 feet is what Kevin Cripanuk hopes to have come July 22. Kevin has just qualified for the National Junior Olympics to be held on the campus of Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah beginning July 23. He will be competing in the young men's division of the 110 meter high hurdles.

Kevin earned the right by winning the Eastern Mass. competition at Taunton High School on June 20 and followed that up with a first place finish June 28 at Portland, Maine to clinch the lone spot in the event as Division I (New England, New York, New Jersey) representative.

Kevin, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cripanuk, has just completed his junior year at Wilmington High School. He is a three-year member of the track and cross-country teams at the high school and continues the long line of hurdling excellence in winter and spring track for the Wildcats, a line which has earned recognition through the efforts of Bill Badiali, Rick McCully, Don Capone, Joe Tannian, Roger Coville, Marty Boudreau and others.

This past year Kevin earned all-league honors in both indoor and outdoor seasons, scored in Class C and All-State competition and capped his junior year interscholastic efforts with a fifth place in the New England Championships on June 13.

He has received Most Valuable Athlete awards for boys' winter and spring track this year and is co-captain elect of next year's winter track team.

Kevin has had a long time interest in UCLA and hopes to continue his educational and athletic endeavors there upon graduation from Wilmington High School.

Wildcat coach Frank Kelley is supervising a fund to support Kevin's trip to the Junior Olympics in August. Donations may be mailed to 41 Everett Ave., Wilmington.

Thanks

Town Crier sports editor Rick Cooke would like to thank Wilmington Little League for its cooperation throughout this past season. Excellent game reports helped make the sports editor's job very enjoyable throughout this Wilmington Little League season.

Wilmac Astros coach Bob Dickey tries his hand at the unique game of halfball that was part of the week-long Wilmington Fourth of July celebration.

Boys finish strong

The Wilmington Boys Under 10-1 soccer team finished the spring season in great fashion with two strong wins over Wakefield and Malden.

In overcoming Wakefield, 4-0 the offense spread the scoring among four players.

Each of the forwards scored a goal as Wilmington kept up strong pressure throughout the game. Goals by Eric Jones at center forward and Ryan Swasey at right wing highlighted the first half.

A revamped defense led by Chris Gill, John Florence, Mark Wallace and Kevin O'Leary kept constant pressure in the offensive end of the field.

In the second half left winger Patrick Cahill and fullback John Florence scored to raise the final score to 4-0. Backed by solid goaltending from Nicholas Montalto, the Wilmington boys dominated the remaining action.

In the final game of the year against Malden, the boys exploded for seven goals to shutout their opponents, 7-0.

The first half scoring opened with a goal by Eric Jones who scored from a flurry of shots in the goal area.

Left winger Patrick Cahill scored the next three goals as he hammered one home from in front of the net, lofted one high into the corner and deflected in a beautiful crossing pass from Eric Jones.

The fifth goal of the half came on a powerful shot from center halfback Keith Audette.

The halfback tandem of Stephen Holland and Danny King continued to control the midfield area throughout the game. Their hard work continued to produce scoring opportunities.

Right winger Michael Cairra was foiled several times on strong scoring bids as he came up with a great game.

In the second half, John Florence dominated the play and scored twice to bring the score to 7-0. John's first goal came on a drive from just inside the penalty area, while his second followed a beautiful steal of the ball from a defender and then a quick shot to the corner.

Very strong play from Rich Barden and Andrew Armata kept the Malden team bottled up for most of the game. Mark Wallace registered his first shutout as a goalie in this strong win.

The boys had a fine season. The coaches were delighted with their determined play and their great attitude. Their overall record for the spring was four wins, two ties and two losses.

Last soccer signup

This week is the last chance to Sign up for Wilmington Soccer Camp. The camp is run by the North American Soccer Camps and sponsored by Wilmington Youth Soccer.

The camp will run from July 13-18 from 1:30 to 4:40 p.m. Cost is $85. The coaches are licensed A or B-coaches and this is one of the highest certificates in the world, from the English Football Association.

If interested, please contact Bill Wallace (658-6405) as soon as possible, since any late registrants now might have trouble receiving their soccer ball and other equipment for the camp.

Astros top Somerville, 5-4

Tues., June 30: The Wilmac Astros topped the Somerville Red Sox, 5-4 behind the six-hit pitching of lefthander Larry Thomas.

Jim Adamson paced a 10 hit attack with three hits, while Scott Bolton chipped in with a pair of hits including a booming triple in the third inning.

Wed., July 1: Phil Stephens (3-1) tossed a strong six-hitter to lead the Astros past Melrose, 3-1.

Scott Bolton continued his hot hitting with three hits, while Vin Erzzone knocked in the game winning run with a second inning single.

Upcoming games

Wed., July 8, Augustine's, 6 p.m., North; Fri., July 10, Grannan, 6 p.m., North; Sat., July 11, Lowell (2), 1 p.m., North; Sun., July 12, Medford, 5:30 p.m. North; Mon., July 13, at Red Sox, 8:30 p.m.; Tue., July 14, at Nashua, 6 p.m.

Royals

Steve Price, Mike Higginson, Adam Stanco and Eric McClafferty played like third year veterans for the team. They were outstanding at the plate and on the field.

Bob Sharkey and Jerry Murphy kept the outfield clean of their opponents hits with tremendous catches and fantastic throwing ability.

Tim DeSousa's speed on the bases was unmatched by any other player in the league, and Mark DeFelice was a true all-star at firstbase.

The Royals now go on to try and duplicate their town championship win of last year.

Race walking clinic

Tired of jogging, biking and tennis? Want to meet new and interesting people and learn the techniques of a sport that's growing in popularity? If you answered yes to either of these questions, you're ready for the Health Horizons sponsored Race Walking Clinic which will be held on three Mondays; July 20, July 27 and August 3 at 6:30 p.m. at Lowell General Hospital.

Health Horizons, the Occupational Health Division of Lowell General Hospital, presents fitness and wellness clinics and courses as a regular part of its program. Race Walking, the newest course offering, will be taught by Karen Faye, a health and fitness educator. "This clinic is for people already in good physical condition," says Faye. "We will teach the bio-mechanics of race walking as well as participating in the sport."

Time Magazine recently reported that race walking "... isn't mere walking, but a highly energetic, intensive form of exercise that many health experts recommend over jogging because of the lower chance of injury. The National Sporting Goods Association reports that exercise walking in all its forms, whether competitive or just for fitness, is now the second most popular outdoor activity in the United States. (after swimming)"

Cost of the Health Horizons clinic is $25. For more information, or to pre-register, call 937-6363.

Deadline

The Town Crier sports deadline is Monday night at 6 p.m. Any sports copy received after that deadline will not be included in that week's sports section.

Outdoors column

by Bill Conlon

People don't need to worry much about predators, at least not since we've chased wolves and grizzly bears onto the Endangered Species List.

About the only predator we need to worry about any more is the Great White Shark, and only then when we're deeper than our ankles in seawater.

But the world just isn't the same for lower species. Most critters, in fact, serve as both predator and prey -- which can be handy to know for fishing purposes.

Take a pickerel for instance. These long, lean fish fairly bristle with sharp teeth, making them living death to any minnow or frog in the area, at least during daylight hours.

So, try to imagine what life would be like as a pickerel. Silly maybe, but it helps to know how your prey thinks.

To a pickerel, dinner is whatever blunders by, but only if you're quick enough to catch it. Luckily, pickerel have no problem at all with speed.

However, cruising around for dinner can be dangerous. Most birds and turtles just love to eat fish, making it safer for you to just lie in wait for chow to swim by. The best place to catch pickerel is often right along the lily pads, where they're hidden from sight but ready to sprint.

Bass are pretty much the same, trying to balance their safety against the need for food. But old bucketmouth is more willing to look for dinner than a pickerel, and bass can usually be found where the pickings are easiest.

Also, bass don't quit at sunset like pickerel do. Most birds go off to roost when the sun goes down, giving bass free run of the pond until morning. With safety pretty well handled by the cover of darkness, the bass have only to eat their fill -- which they do.

Now change sides. Instead of the predator, imagine how the prey must think.

Minnows and frogs are the main food source of gamefish, so let's concentrate on them. Forget the leeches, snakes, bugs and other rungs of the food ladder for now.

Frogs and little fish always seem spooky, and for very good reason. Both will scatter at top speed when danger threatens. If they didn't, they would have been eaten by now.

But (and this is a biggie) frogs and minnows are sometimes stupid or unsuspecting, and that's exactly what the bigger fish are looking for. Think about it.

Have you ever caught anything with a lure that was moving at top speed? Unlikely. A scared minnow would be tough to catch, and most fish won't even try.

Instead, a slow-moving minnow, one that looks stupid, is dead meat. Slow down your retrieve with a minnow lure and watch what happens.

The same thing works with a frog lure. A high-speed retrieve makes a frog look like it's terrified and fleeing for its life. Frightened frogs are a pain to catch, in case you've ever tried to nab one.

Instead, think of a nice, fat bullfrog -- lazy and yawning -- just hanging around the shoreline weeds. UmmUm! Frog lures take more bass in a foot of water than they do ten feet deep (fact!) and there's a sensible reason. Frogs are relaxed and lazy in a foot of water, and that makes them stupid and easy to catch. Bass know that.

Predators and prey. That's what fishing is all about. Think like both and you'll have an edge. It works.

Hunters interested in applying for antlerless deer permits for the coming season are reminded to mail in the application by August 15. This year's antlerless deer permit applications are attached to the bottom of the regular hunting license, so rip and mail if you want to apply. As usual, the permits will be drawn by zone, using the last digit of the license number.

State Rep. Jim Miceli reports that $200,000 has been added to the state environmental budget for the clean-up of Long Pond in Tewksbury. The results of a recent study of the pond should be in around September, Mr. Miceli reports, and the clean-up funds now go before the state Senate for approval.

If funding is approved, Mr. Miceli said the pond will become a

"showplace," but he said he's leaving it up to the town fathers to decide what to do with the pond once it's cleaned up. The clean-up process should begin sometime next year, he said.

But wouldn't it be nice to have a town beach in Tewksbury? And a place to go bass fishing without all those weeds. Stay tuned!

The state record for tiger muskie was broken last month. While fishing in a bass tournament on Lake Quinsigamond in Worcester on June 14, Albert Farland of New Bedford hauled in a tiger which weighed 19-pounds, 4-ounces and stretched to 40 1/2 inches. The previous record weighed 18-12 and has stood since 1985.

Tiger muskies are sterile hybrids of the pike family which are added to ponds with too many panfish. The nearest pond with tigers, by the way, is Flint's Pond in Tyngsboro, just over the Tyngsboro bridge and next to the town hall located there.

Nobody has yet come forward to boast of their monster fish and have their picture put in the paper. Just give me a call at 658-2346 and I'll gladly make you and your catch famous. Such a deal ...

In Stoneham and Wakefield Latchkey program helps kids

By JIM ROUILLARD

The local Latchkey program unlocks a lot -- and helps keep it safe.

Primarily, Latchkey unlocks the way to companionship, kick-ball, lemonade and laughter -- for area kids who would otherwise go home to silent and empty space between the walls. Latchkey is also a door-opener.

For Lisa Abramo, who likes her job so much that she is changing it, the program has opened a door to the other end of the generation spectrum.

The 20-year-old Wakefield resident, site director of Latchkey at Stoneham's Our Place, has been involved in child care for more than seven years. Her plans now involve a career move to a different age group -- and providing care for the elderly.

And for the local elderly, Latchkey has conceived a way to keep in touch with other people, places and ideas, through a network of inter-generational pen pals.

Sponsored by its parent Latchkey program at the Wakefield YMCA, The Stoneham spinoff is like ... well, it's like an open door.

To a passer-by at the Latchkey location at the intersection of Pleasant and William streets, in fact, a recent early-summer scene might have seemed a kind of family reunion, with grandmothers and youngsters pretty much in abundance amid a sprinkling of young adults and the middle-aged.

But I knew better -- and the meeting was no chance encounter. Armed with a surprise invitation gone somewhat astray (it had come to a friend who could not make the meeting), I found more than a complimentary meal of iced tea, hot dogs, laughter and cake.

In some aspects, the inter-generational pen pal bash

Schools-Out Drive Slow

That's a timely warning issued to motorists by AAA Massachusetts.

"With schools closed for the summer, you'll find many youngsters playing alongside — and sometimes in — the streets," Caroline J. Hymoff, danger of Safety Services for AAA Massachusetts said recently.

Vacationing students often forget their traffic safety rules — something drivers should keep in mind.

Mishaps can occur in a split second as children scurry from behind parked cars, dart across streets or take to playing games in or near the streets.

AAA urges drivers to slow down especially during the first few days of summer vacation.

"Motorists should be extra careful when backing out of a driveway, no matter what time of day," warns Hymoff. "Stop and look all ways before entering the traffic flow. A skater, bicyclist, jogger, or young pedestrian may be hidden from view."

The AAA listed areas where special caution is required: Recreational areas — playgrounds, swimming pools, tennis courts, ice cream and fast food stores, movie theaters.

Urban residential areas — lack of space and few recreational facilities tempt youngsters to use streets as playgrounds.

Suburban residential areas — corners, curves, and driveways are often "blind" and bike use is high.

POEM

On A Summer's Day

I walked down by the Seashore
One lazy Summer's Day,
To watch the ships that come
and go
And little children play,

I stopped to talk with a little lad
Down by the water's edge,
He was busily sailing a little boat
And this is what he said.

When I get to be a grownup man,
I'll sail the ocean blue
In one of those big boats 'way out there
I'll be the Captain, too.

I'll sail the wide world over
And bring back gifts galore
I'll even visit kings and queens
On every foreign shore.

I'll stop off at Treasure Island
To see Old Captain Kidd Gosh, do you think perhaps he might
Show me where his gold is hid?

I'll rid the Ocean of pirates
Who rob good people of the Sea
And any who happen to cross
my path
Will have to answer to me.

And when I've done my very best
To make it safe for men
Only then will I be content
To come sailing home again.

I walked down by the Seashore
Strolled down there just today
To watch the ships that come
and go
And little children play

I walked along the water's edge
As I had done before
The little lad with the little
boat?
Oh, he is a child no more.

He's out there on the Ocean blue
Making it safe for men
He's sailing a big boat now, you see,
But he'll be back again.

But will he come sailing home again
Back from the foreign shore?
Will he come back to his loved ones
And be safe forevermore?

God alone holds the answer
But take a tip from me
He loves little boys with little boats
Who play down by the sea

COMPUTER CAMP FOR KIDS

There are still a few openings for sessions III and IV in Computer Camp for Kids at Middlesex Community College, Terrace Hall Avenue, Burlington.

This half day program, designed for boys and girls, ages 7 to 14, provides hands-on experience with microcomputers and is suitable for campers with little or no experience as well as for experienced "hackers."

Campers this summer will be able to use the new IBM PC's for the first time. Let your children come and have fun, while learning to use this "serious" computer with software designed for fun as well as for learning. Basic language in various applications will be taught.

More experienced programmers will have an opportunity to try Advanced Programming Techniques. Instruction is tailored to the individual needs and abilities of each student and both levels will be covered at all sessions. Each student has a terminal to use each day and enrollment is limited.

Session III, July 20-31 and Session IV, August 3-14 will be held from 9 a.m. to noon.

Tuition is $160 for a two week session. For more information or to register, please call 275-8910, ext. 291.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Do you see greatness in a seed? Can you visualize beautiful flowers, delicious vegetables or a tall towering majestic tree when you look at a seed? Do you see greatness in a child? Can you envision that he or she has the potential to become a musician, a world renowned scientist or distinguished statesman? Do you see greatness in a smile? Can you look beyond that priceless gift and recognize the light of encouragement, the ray of hope, the warmth and love that's behind the smile? The wonderful thing about a smile is that we never know where it will end, how many lives it will enrich, how many burdens it will ease.

Folks, that is the reason, purpose and hope of Woodchips. People are recognized by being mentioned in it, thus affording me the honor to let them know I love them; like, Brother Gallagher, Fred Neilson, Ruth Haggarty, Bernice Sullivan, Janice Festa, Suzanne Geary, Fr. Richard Brady, Virginia Corbett, Debbie Stockbridge, Jim Curley, Capt. John Regan, Winchester Fire Dept., Jack Duffey and Jack Cormier, Woburn firefighters, and Tom Jordan and many more.

There isn't any pleasure in not having anything to do. The fun is having a lot to do and not doing anything. That is the motto of my cousin, Angelo Quaganti. I asked his wife Kate, "Why is he taking a nap in the middle of the day?" "It's Spring Fever," she said. "He caught it in the spring of 1980." When he woke up I asked him, "I thought you were planning to paint the fence." "Oh," he exclaimed, "that was last week - now I'm planning to mow the lawn."

If all the golfers in the Middlesex East area were on the golf links at the same time, there wouldn't be enough room to place a tee anywhere. Kathy asked me today, "Why don't you play golf with Peter Sullivan, Kenny Binding and Olin Brown anymore?" "Would you play golf with any one who moves the ball with his foot when he thinks that you're not looking?" "Of course not," she exclaimed. "Well, neither do they." John Shea and Rowan Fitzgerald hired a rowboat and went fishing. Two miles off shore the boat sprung a leak and started to sink. Rowan panicked and Uncle John tried to calm him down saying, "What the heck are you worried about, we don't own the boat!"

Rep. Whip Saltmarsh and many police officers from the Middlesex East area participated in the Mass. Law Enforcement Torch Run recently. It was held to raise money for the Mass. Special Olympics. Some of those running the 4.1 mile race were Rep. Whip Saltmarsh, Chief Eugene Passaro, Bob Silva, Sgt. Frank DelTergo, Joseph Silveria, Sgt. Greg O'Keefe, Sgt. Tom Teranti and many other public spirited citizens.

My nephew, Dennis Tully, received an award for naming the 50 states and not only that, he named them in alphabetical order. His fourth grade teacher, Miss Mary Sullivan, showered him with compliments saying, "Dennis, that is indeed remarkable, I could never have done that when I was your age." Dennis, who will never win any awards for tact and diplomacy, replied, "Miss Sullivan, it would have been a lot easier for you, after all there were only 13 states then." You know, it's better by far to wear out than to rust out. My advice to most men over 40, "Never run after a streetcar, bus or a woman; wait a while, another one will come along soon."

I thank the readers of Woodchips residing in The Blair House Convalescent Home in Tewksbury, especially Dan Hayes, father of Patricia Foley of Tewksbury. "This lad was born with one leg shorter than the other, tell me what would you do in his case?" That question was asked an intern by the doctor taking him through the orthopedic ward of a hospital. The young intern thought about it for a moment and said, "Well doctor, I guess I'd limp, too."

Folks, the reason happiness is not found on a cruise, resort or mountain retreat is because, wherever we go we must take ourselves with us and that sometimes spoils everything. Happiness is really a state of mind and a by-product of creative activity. It can only be achieved and attained by reaching out to embrace, console or help someone. I never knew what real happiness was until I got married. But then it was too late. Happiness is often the result of being too busy to be miserable.

Folks, why tell everyone you see your troubles? Sixty percent of them are not listening, ten percent don't care and most of the rest of them are glad that you have them. Summer is here at last. How do I know? My friend, George Guyette, a motorcyclist, just took off his "long Honda wear." Louis O'Malley said, "Many a man who fell in love with a 'dimple' made the mistake of marrying the 'whole girl.'" I had to take my wife Kathy home from a party early last night. She was so tired she could hardly keep her mouth open.

If everything is coming your way, you better stop and make sure you're not driving up a one-way street the "wrong" way.

Retired Men's Club

The Retired Men's Club of Wakefield will hear and see an interesting presentation on energy at their meeting on July 8. The New England Electric System conservation van will be parked in the parking lot of the First Parish Congregational Church in Wakefield, the meeting site of the club. During the program part of the meeting indoors, a movie will be shown on the building of the hydro-electric plant in northern Quebec.

The Men's Club meets on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at 9:30 a.m. the year around; coffee and donuts are served beginning at 9 a.m. Membership in the club is open to all retired men within commuting distance of Wakefield. In addition to the monthly meetings, the club has six splinter groups to meet the special interests of members: bridge, travel, photography, stamp collecting, bowling, and band. The bridge, band, and bowling clubs meet the year around; the others are active September through May. Any men who are interested in playing bridge are invited to join that group on Tuesday afternoons at 12:30 p.m. at the Reading Senior Center. The bowlers play Mondays and Thursdays at 1 p.m. at the Wakefield Bowladrome.

complete four classroom courses taught at Merrimack and two electives through home study.

The four required courses, each of which will meet on six Tuesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. include: Managing and Training People (Sept. 15-Oct. 27); Effective Communications (Nov. 3-Dec. 15); Customer Relations (Jan. 19-March 1); and Food Merchandising (March 8-April 19).

For the two elective courses, students have 21 options to choose from, each option focusing on a specific dimension or product in food retailing.

Participants in this certificate program are required to

This is the "Woodchips Congratulations Section." Ed Broodian, for 40 years of service with the Stoneham Police Department as clerk and photographer. Joseph Geradi, for receiving the Joseph Silverio, Sons of Italy scholarship from Rose Perri and President Charles Perenick. The beautiful Donna Marie Sannella, for graduating magna cum laude from Regis College in Weston. Eight year old Melissa Schofield for winning two gold medals in figure skating competition. For being elected officers of the Stoneham League of Women Voters, Maureen Houghton, Carol Kopek, Monica Nardone, Susan Doucette and Maureen Soley.

Folks, it's that time of the year when young boys and girls try out for Little League teams. I used to like to watch the games but my cousin, Maureen, took some of the fun out of the game. "Moe," as we call her, is a fiery red-headed spitfire, with a temper to match. She just can't sit in the stands like most of the parents do - she has to rant and rave on the sidelines. Her son, Dennis Tully, (who you read so much about in Woodchips) hit the ball smartly to left field last summer. The coach signaled him to hold up at second base but "Big Moe," had other ideas. She yelled and screamed for him to continue on to third. The poor kid was confused and of course was later trapped between second and third base and tagged out. I asked her later why she insists on playing the game for her son? "Look," she said, "you stick to writing that stupid column and leave baseball to me." That is the point I'm trying to make folks - I'll stick to my Woodchips, Maureen, you stick to sitting in the stands and leave all the young lads and lasses to play baseball, basketball, soccer, field hockey and enjoy themselves.

Latchkey program

seemed almost as disorienting and topsy-turvy as the Mad Hatter's Tea Party.

For one thing, the youngsters were extraordinarily polite, waiting on adults and urging them to "Eat! Eat!"

The children's exuberance, excitement and enthusiasm, moreover, were neither too hot nor too cold -- neither too overpowering nor too restrained -- but just right.

Finally, the adults' picnic table -- seating 'only' adults and a little over-anchored on one side -- pitched and yawed once as the balance of power shifted. Three prominent local grandmothers went for a brief open-eyed, gape-mouthed ride -- but the table righted itself along with the unrestrained laughter of surprise and relief.

As for the program itself, Latchkey is a national concept which, though popular throughout the country, is somewhat rare in local Eastern Middlesex communities. Simply stated, it provides an after-school place to go for children of working parents.

The need for Latchkey?

"It must be enormous," said Stoneham's Vangie Baylies, one of the senior pen pals, "because nowadays, just to survive, in most cases both parents have to work."

Mrs. Baylies noted as well the apparent subsidiary effect of the Latchkey program, in commenting on the children's good manners: "They seem to have developed a politeness that is bound to help them and ease their way in life. It's hard to refuse a polite child."

Traci Cobbett, eight, dextrously twining a rose in the hair of one of her three senior pen pals, said the part she likes best about Latchkey and the senior pen pal program is just "getting to know people."

For Joanne Sem of Wakefield, who became familiar with Latchkey as a counsellor last summer at the Saugus Y, the best part is "taking care of these guys," she said as she tousled the hair of Lisa Corfman, seven and Rachel Fitzmeyer, nine.

Stoneham's Alice Moore, a volunteer at the Council on Aging for about 12 years, and now a senior pen pal as well, "The kids are beautiful -- and that means more than only in looks." Mrs. Moore displayed a necklace her pen pal had sent her.

"My first letter from Rachel came with this gift," she said. "I love it. The color matches this blouse and the gold metal goes with my earrings."

Gary Cobbett, 11, Traci's brother, couldn't stay out of the act.

"I'm really lucky," he offered.

"Why?"

"Because I've got Vangie for a pen pal, and she's so nice."

"Did you say she was pretty?"

"No, Therese said she's pretty -- but I agree."

FORMER LATCHKEY COUNSELLOR JOANNE SEM of Wakefield, is flanked by Stoneham youngsters Rachel Fitzmeyer, left, and Lisa Corfman.

The said Therese Bastien, 10, and her brother, Algernon, nine, came to Stoneham from Montreal four years ago. They said they like their new home better than the Canadian metropolis, especially the Latchkey program "because the kids are so friendly, and there are so many field trips, especially miniature golfing."

Lisa Abramo of Wakefield, site director at Stoneham, said she has been in the Latchkey program for two years, having started at the Wakefield YMCA. Though she moves this summer into a training job in the field of gerontology, the Wakefield High graduate said she has loved her seven-year involvement with youngsters -- particularly the close, one-on-one opportunities which working at the Stoneham Latchkey has provided.

"In terms of funding," she said, "The Wakefield Y can just afford to expand into Stoneham. But in Wakefield we had 28 kids and three counsellors. The lower child-to-counsellor ratio here in Stoneham has paid tremendous dividends in compassion, caring and loving. I've seen kids blossom and mature here because of the one-to-one capacity in Stoneham."

Despite her submitting her resignation the previous week to broaden her career and work experience, Lisa Abramo said "I'll be sad because I've grown with all these kids and they've grown with me. I'll be leaving all of my 32 kids."

Latchkey closes its doors with the school year, Abramo said, and reopens in September. During the summer, she added, the children are automatically enrolled at Camp Wakanda in Boxford.

Doreen Moore, executive director of Our Place, which provides the current home for the Stoneham satellite Latchkey, said monies for the program come from Massachusetts Division of Social Services funds and from parents' pocketbooks.

"It's not enough (from the state), in any case," she added, and there are other potential hazards to the program's continuation, in Stoneham at least. "One of the greatest problems is you can't get staff, because the hours are odd."

The program may, as well, be without a home in the future if the Our Place building is sold.

"Some of the states are turning the program over to the senior citizens," Moore added. That solution, perfect in her view, in light of the space available at the town's Senior Citizen Center on Elm Street, has been proposed to Stoneham officials, she said, "and got exactly nowhere."

Lee FitzPatrick of Lynnfield, member of an advisory task force committee which is trying to promote community planning and development programs, commented on the joy, fun, and other benefits evident in the Latchkey pen pal program:

"You see the potential here for intergenerational action. The pen pal program took fire right off. Both generations -- children with working parents and elders whose families, for whatever reason, are absent -- are lonely and want relationships with others."

"So it was my interest in this kind of interaction which brought me here to the Latchkey program. I see the program as a foundation concept -- and this is far from the total of what we could accomplish."

As I left the lawn party and walked to my car, the laughter from children and grandmothers continued to bubble and waft from the garden, like welcoming love spilling from an open doorway.

Latchkey is an open door. Whether the concept can unseal local, official and legislative hearts and minds remains, as well, an open question.

MOVIE REVIEWS Rochelle Flynn

Innerspace Salvation

Innerspace Starring Martin Short, Randy Quaid, Meg Ryan. Directed by Joe Dante. Produced by Michael Finnell. Written by Jeffrey Boam and Chip Proser. Rated PG (profanity, some violence).

Make yourself comfortable. Don't buy anything to eat that might stain if you drop it in a fit of laughter. Oh, and check your mind at the door, because Innerspace is a wacky, silly, wonderful comedy that is just the ticket for hot and tired minds.

Martin Short made this larger-than-life vehicle his own as the slightly nerdy Safeway clerk who gets injected with an immensely reduced Randy Quaid. Quaid, who plays a test pilot with a lot of chutzpah but very little common sense, allowed the government to make him a human guinea pig, shrink and inject him into a bunny rabbit. When corporate thieves enter the picture, one alert scientist grabs the syringe and heads for the nearest shopping mall, where Short gets stuck.

And that's only the tip of the hypodermic needle. While the action never spins completely out of control, it gets mighty close at times, so it's best not to ask too many questions. Just relax and go with the flow. And flow it will, because the screen is often taken over by red blood cells, a huge pumping heart and sundry other organs. Luckily, however, the special effects don't swamp the humor. Quaid, who goes through most of the movie confined to his pseudo-space pod, had to use minimal motion to convey an effervescent personality. Short, meanwhile, metamorphasized from a nebbish to a hero with body language to spare. And while Short and Quaid bounce zingers off of each other to the utter delight of the audience, it is the small, slightly neurotic grocery clerk who steals the show as he realizes just how much fun life can be once he's brave enough to raise a little hell.

Salvation Starring Stephen McHattie, Dominique Davalos, Exene Cervenka, Viggo Mortensen. Directed by Beth B. Written by Tom Robison and Beth B. Produced by Michael H. Shamberg and Beth B. Rated R (profanity, violence, simulated sex).

It's pretentiousness that will damn Salvation to a quickie run in the theatres before being banished to video tape purgatory. But what can you expect from a director/screen writer who lists herself only as Beth B.?

Luckily, there are one or two saving graces mixed into this dimly-lit flick that's heavily burdened by a miniscule budget. At least, one assumes that if there had been more money there would have been more lightbulbs. Anyway, considering the Holy Wars generated through the press these days, a dark comedy about a TV evangelist could not have been more timely, and there is a most interesting performance turned in by Exene Cervenka, lead singer of the L.A.-based band "X."

Not that Cervenka doesn't make her presence known on stage, she's hardly the retiring wall-flower type, but the fact that she so adeptly pulled in her own reins until the time was right means that she may have a future in films. She actually did a better job than Stephen McHattie, who is one of the few really experienced actors in the film.

McHattie as the warped minister was too controlled for his own good. He just wasn't quite eerie enough, or perverse enough or corrupt enough, whereas Cervenka went from a meek, goggled-eyed parishioner to a heavy-metal Christian singer with energy to spare. Of course, it wouldn't be difficult to shift the blame of McHattie's uneven performance to director Beth B, who gave us waves of excitement broken by long stretches of nothingness until she ground the film to a halt with an absurd ending.

The first 15 minutes of the film, in which Cervenka and her weird family gather around the TV set is primo fodder for cult junkies. The foul-mouthed husband, the slutty sister-in-law and Cervenka, whose lost herself in an evangelical Never Never Land, is the kind of stuff we'd expect from John Waters. But B loses us when the sister-in-law decides to seduce the prime time minister. Arty symbolism, completely out of place in a film like this, is used in the seduction scene, which is heavily bathed in blue light.

Outlandish plot machinations are used to introduce characters. How does Cervenka's hubby know that his sister-in-law is at the minister's house? When the minister has fled his own home in terror, why does Cervenka happen to be in the same area and stop to offer him a ride? Your guess is as good as mine.

Things pick up some when Cervenka gets to sing a neat little heavy metal ditty, "Destroy All Evil," while decked out in the latest leather and steal outfit. It's funny, she's intense and B comes across with an interesting backdrop. But, in all honesty, since Cervenka's the best thing about the flick, you can always wait until "X" is in town or catch the six-year-old documentary, "Decline of Western Civilization," in which she is featured. Hopefully, Cervenka will get some more acting work out of this not-quite-black comedy. As far as B goes, it doesn't appear as if this independent flick is going to get her a ride on the studio gravy train.

Short takes

Straight to Hell is a punk spaghetti western that is interesting only if you want to watch punk and new wave musicians like The Pogues and Elvis Costello make their dramatic debuts. Otherwise it's not very funny, isn't the cult movie it hoped to be and is actually pretty dull. Rated R. *

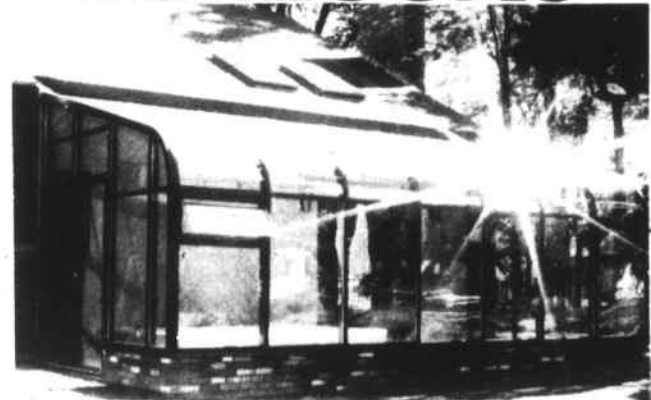

Adventures in Babysitting starts out as a cute tale about the trials and tribulations encountered when a sheltered suburban babysitter crosses over the dark and treacherous boundaries of THE CITY with her charges in tow. There is a lot of humor in this fast-paced flick before director Chris Columbus steps over the line and lets the story meander into areas we just can't believe. Rated PG-13. * * 1/2

The Witches of Eastwick is rollicking good fun, even if it isn't a great movie. Jack Nicholson may be doing his Shining schtick, but what the hell, he was entertaining in that, too. Cher, Susan Sarandon and Michelle Pfeiffer are enticing, erotic, intelligent and amusing. So, the special effects are lousy and the ending is a letdown. Go for the first 90 minutes, you won't be sorry you did. Rated R. * * *

CHASING AN ECLIPSE AT SEA

On March 18, 1988 a group of adventurous travellers will witness one of nature's most awesome spectacles — a total eclipse of the sun — from the spacious decks of Queen Elizabeth 2 during the course of its World Cruise. The newly refurbished British luxury liner will be positioned to intercept eclipse totality in the South China Sea off the coast of Borneo.

The March 18 eclipse touches the Earth at sunrise in the Indian Ocean and rushes eastward across Sumatra, Borneo and the Southern Philippines as it curves northward leaving the Earth in the Gulf of Alaska.

The odds of never experiencing the daytime disappearance of the earth's life giving sun are 25,000 to 1 for those remaining in one location. This most awesome celestial spectacle will not be seen from the continental United States until the year 2017.

Selecting an eclipse site requires precision planning years before the scheduled event. Most eclipses occur in segments which include visits to Mombasa, Seychelles, Bombay, Colombo, Kuala Lumpur, Singapore, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Peking, Osaka and Yokohama.

Additional eclipse cruise details can be secured through travel agents, Cunard Line Ltd., or by writing QE 2 Eclipse Cruise, 1080 Fifth Avenue, Suite 16C, New York, N.Y. 10028.

inaccessible areas — remote deserts, mid-ocean, and mountainous regions.

Although scientists have travelled to eclipses for over 200 years, only since the early 70's with the advent of the Pedas-Sigler "Voyage to Darkness" shipborne expeditions, has easy access to eclipses become feasible for large numbers of people.

Unlike land based expeditions, which are at the mercy of clouds, a ship at sea provides significantly better odds for successful eclipse viewing. Previous shipboard "Voyage to Darkness" expeditions evaded bad weather by successfully maneuvering their course to seek out ideal vantage points for a spectacular rendezvous with eclipse totality.

Four segments of the QE 2 "Voyage of the Southern Crown" world cruise are available to eclipse chasers. The shortest segment, an eight day itinerary originates in Singapore, on March 17, and includes port stops at Bangkok and Hong Kong. Cruise fares start at $1,850.00. Air/sea fares are available as are longer
